Preface, Acknowledgments, Background, Functions and Purposes

PREFACE

In 1988, a project to compile all relevant material relating to the past and present activities and business of the American Board of Forensic Odontology was initiated. After four years the resultant Diplomates Reference Manual was completed and provided to all diplomates in a printed form. During the years following this initial publication additional information has been added and the Manual updated yearly to reflect the changes and new business of the ABFO. Because of current technology the updating and dissemination of the Diplomates Reference Manual is now done via the ABFO website.

This manual is being provided to all diplomates of the American Board of Forensic Odontology and other interested parties at the ABFO website at www.abfo.org. It is recommended that ABFO diplomates become familiar with all of the sections of this publication as much of the information contained herein is important for not only our forensic case work but for the growth and development of our science and the continued effectiveness of the ABFO.

Section I:

Preface, Acknowledgments, Background, and Functions & Purposes of the ABFO.

Section II:

Contains the Bylaws, Code of Ethics, Articles of Incorporation and historical list of the past officers of the ABFO.

Section III:

Contains the Policies, Procedures, Guidelines and Standards that have been established over the years. Some of this information has to do with the procedures that you must follow to maintain your diplomate status and policies that must be adhered to if you are conducting ABFO business.

The Guidelines in this document represent work by many individuals and have been accepted by the Diplomates of the ABFO.

These are copyrighted materials and can be used freely by the diplomates of the ABFO but permission to publish these guidelines in other publications should be obtained by request to the Executive Committee and/or the Board of Directors of the ABFO. Diplomates should review these Guidelines and Standards frequently and strive to follow them as much as possible and encourage others to do the same. With continuing research and technological advancements it will be necessary to modify and/ or add to these existing Guidelines.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The American Board of Forensic Odontology acknowledges those individuals that have contributed to the information that is contained in this manual. It is difficult to list names without the risk of leaving someone out; therefore, it seems appropriate to acknowledge the contribution of all Diplomates, for it is the input of all Diplomates active and deceased that has provided the information that is contained in this Manual. More importantly, it is appropriate to acknowledge the families and friends of the Diplomates for these are the people that also sacrifice their time with us and encourage us to continue the advancement of our profession. It is our dedication as well as theirs that allows the improvement of our science.

BACKGROUND, FUNCTIONS & PURPOSES

The need to identify forensic scientists qualified to provide essential professional services for the judicial and executive branches of government has long been recognized. In response to this professional mandate, the American Board of Forensic Odontology was organized in 1976 to provide, in the interest of the public and the advancement of the science, a program of certification in forensic odontology.

In purpose, function, and organization, the AMERICAN BOARD OF FORENSIC ODONTOLOGY, Inc., herein after referred to as ABFO, is thus analogous to the certifying Boards in various medical specialties and various medical specialties and scientific fields. The objective of the Board is to establish, enhance, and revise as necessary, standards of qualification for those who practice forensic odontology, and to certify as qualified specialists those applicants who comply with the requirements of the Board.

Certification is based upon the candidate's personal and professional record of education, training, experience and achievement, as well as the results of a formal examination. The ABFO is an incorporated non-profit organization. The ABFO is recognized by the American Academy of Forensic Sciences and is accredited by the Forensic Specialties Accreditation Board (FSAB) www.thefsab.org . The current Certificate of Accreditation from the FSAB is within this document.

A BRIEF HISTORY

The American Academy of Forensic Sciences (AAFS) was founded in 1948 and served as the parent organization of the American Board of Forensic Odontology (ABFO). The early composition of the Academy consisted of the Jurisprudence, Pathology & Biology, Psychiatry, Questioned Documents, and Toxicology sections. Before 1970, the few dentist members of the AAFS were first assigned to the Pathology & Biology section and later to the General section. The Odontology section was added in 1970 at the recommendation of Academy officers and the required numbers of dentists were recruited from the General section.

In 1962, the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology (AFIP) began to include forensic odontology in its list of course offerings with dental lectures and laboratory sessions presented by several oral pathologists and one of ABFO's charter members, Dr. David Scott. Background presentations on forensic pathology, toxicology, and the law were also given by various experts in those disciplines, as well. The course content and emphasis began to change when identification procedures at disaster sites were evaluated by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). There was a pressing need to establish an accepted protocol for these situations and to teach these protocols to interested and involved individuals. Many dentists who participated in this early effort with the AFIP were charter members of the ABFO.

Colonel Robert Boyers, Chief of Oral Pathology at the AFIP, was very influential in the creation of the American Society of Forensic Odontology (ASFO) in 1970. He was concerned that many individuals interested in this field but not actively engaged in the practice of forensic dentistry through a formal affiliation with some forensic agency, could not become members of the Odontology section of the Academy. The ASFO was founded to allow anyone interested in forensic odontology to meet and further their knowledge in this area. Today, it is an important organization serving forensic odontology through its educational programs and publications available to all.

In the mid-seventies, the potential role of dental evidence in personal identification and Criminalistics was being recognized by police agencies and the courts. The National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, United States Department of Justice gave grants to the Forensic Sciences Foundation, Inc., in 1973, to establish certifying boards in various forensic disciplines, including forensic odontology. These boards were to be established in order to identify and certify experts in their respective fields. As a result, in 1976, with the initial sponsorship of AAFS and the encouragement and assistance of the National Association of Medical Examiners (NAME), the American Board of Forensic Odontology (ABFO) was formed.

The charter members of the ABFO were Doctors Edward Woolridge, Richard Souviron, Curtis Mertz, Arthur Goldman, Gerald Vale, Stanley Schwartz, Lowell Levine, Robert Dorion, Paul Stimson, David Scott, Manuel Maslansky, and George Ward. These charter members made the decision not to be “grandfathered” into the organization. Instead, they took the time and effort to meet the required personal criteria on education, experience, and forensic cases and take the certifying examination that had been established. Thus, these charter members became the first diplomates of the ABFO.

The charter members were very active in establishing important professional and public relations through their leadership in many dental fields: private practice, organized dentistry, dental education and research, specialty practice, military dentistry, and so on. Their contributions were invaluable in helping to build a sound foundation for organized forensic odontology.

Dr. Curtis Mertz served as the ABFO’s first president from 1976 until 1978 and was very influential in establishing the direction of the Board would take during the early years.

While the primary function of the ABFO as a certification (and re-certification) body remains paramount, the Board has long recognized an ongoing need for continuing education and research, promotion of public and professional relations, and enhancement of its commitment to the law and to the public. To this end, the first major effort to develop guidelines for scientific analysis of bite mark evidence was undertaken in a 1984 workshop.

Over the ensuing years, it became clear that other aspects of forensic odontology should be addressed, given the broad scope of the discipline. In the early 1990’s, the Board became more active in establishing guidelines and setting standards for these various areas. The Board was restructured to include (in addition to the administrative committees) five standing committees for Standards, Methods and Procedures: a) Civil Litigation, b) Bite mark and Pattern Injury, c) Human Abuse and Neglect, d) Mass Disaster, and e) Missing and Unidentified Persons.

In general, the duties of these committees were to “...encourage the study of, improve the practice of, enhance the standards for and advance the specialty areas of forensic odontology”, (Article V, Section 3, ABFO Bylaws and Code of Ethics). Specifically, these committees were directed to establish guidelines and set standards for their respective areas and to educate the membership and the forensic community at large, on the specifics of these guidelines and standards. With these objectives in mind, additional workshops in bite marks, body identification, human abuse and neglect, and developing a disaster dental identification team have all taken place since that time. Further, the ABFO and the Council of Dental Practice of the American Dental Association sponsored the first and second National Symposia on Dentistry’s Role and Responsibility in Mass Disasters, held in Chicago in 1986 and 1996.

The governing body of the ABFO consists of the officers and directors who collectively comprise the Board of Directors. Officers and directors are elected by the general membership at the annual meeting. Annual meetings and workshops are typically held in conjunction with the AAFS and ASFO meetings which occur during February at a site designated by the AAFS.
